

This is a detailed topographic map of the Grandjean area in the Jura region. The map shows a network of roads, railways, and geographical features. A prominent red-shaded route is drawn across the map, starting near Grandjean, heading south, then east, and then north, ending near Fenioux. The map includes numerous place names, such as Grandjean, Fenioux, la Frédière, le Treuil, and le Bois Fermé. It also features elevation contours, a grid system, and various geographical features like roads and railways. The red route is a key feature, likely representing a specific path or boundary.
